Policy Statements

The Library takes the following principles into consideration in planning and decision making in all areas of activity, including but not limited to staffing, collections, training and service development:

The Library respects the rights of all individuals to access information, participate in programming, and engage with the community regardless of race, citizenship, income level, education, gender, gender identity/expression, and sexual orientation, including those experiencing disability, addiction, mental illness, or homelessness.

The Library recognizes the right of users to enjoy services free from attempts by others to impose values, customs or beliefs.

The Library understands that an acceptance of differences can sometimes place individual and collective values in conflict.

The Library strives to develop inclusive services and programs in partnership with others in the community and approaches such partnerships with a spirit of humility, respect, and trust.

The Library welcomes exhibits, displays, and programs that celebrate the diverse groups in the community it serves, including seasonal displays celebrating religious or cultural traditions.

Where there are demonstrated barriers to participation, the Library strives to mitigate or eliminate these barriers to the best of its ability. In instances where values may be in conflict, the Library is guided by rigorous evidence and by Canadian law in its approach and response.

- the United Nation's Universal Declaration of Human Rights,
- the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms

The Canadian Federation of Library Associations (CFLA-FCAB) believes that a diverse and pluralistic society is central to our country's identity. Libraries have a responsibility to contribute to a culture that recognizes diversity and fosters social inclusion.

Libraries strive to deliver inclusive service. Canada's libraries recognize and energetically affirm the dignity of those they serve, regardless of heritage, education, beliefs, race, religion, gender, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, physical or mental capabilities, or income.

Libraries understand that an acceptance of differences can place individual and collective values in conflict. Libraries are committed to tolerance and understanding. Libraries act to ensure that people can enjoy services free from any attempt by others to impose values, customs or beliefs.
